Membership History

ASTORIA, OREGON

PREFACE

In tracing the appearance of the Norwegian immigrant in the lower Columbia Valley, on the verdent shores of Oregon's greatest gateway to the sea, soon it became apparent that he arrived not long after the first white settlers.

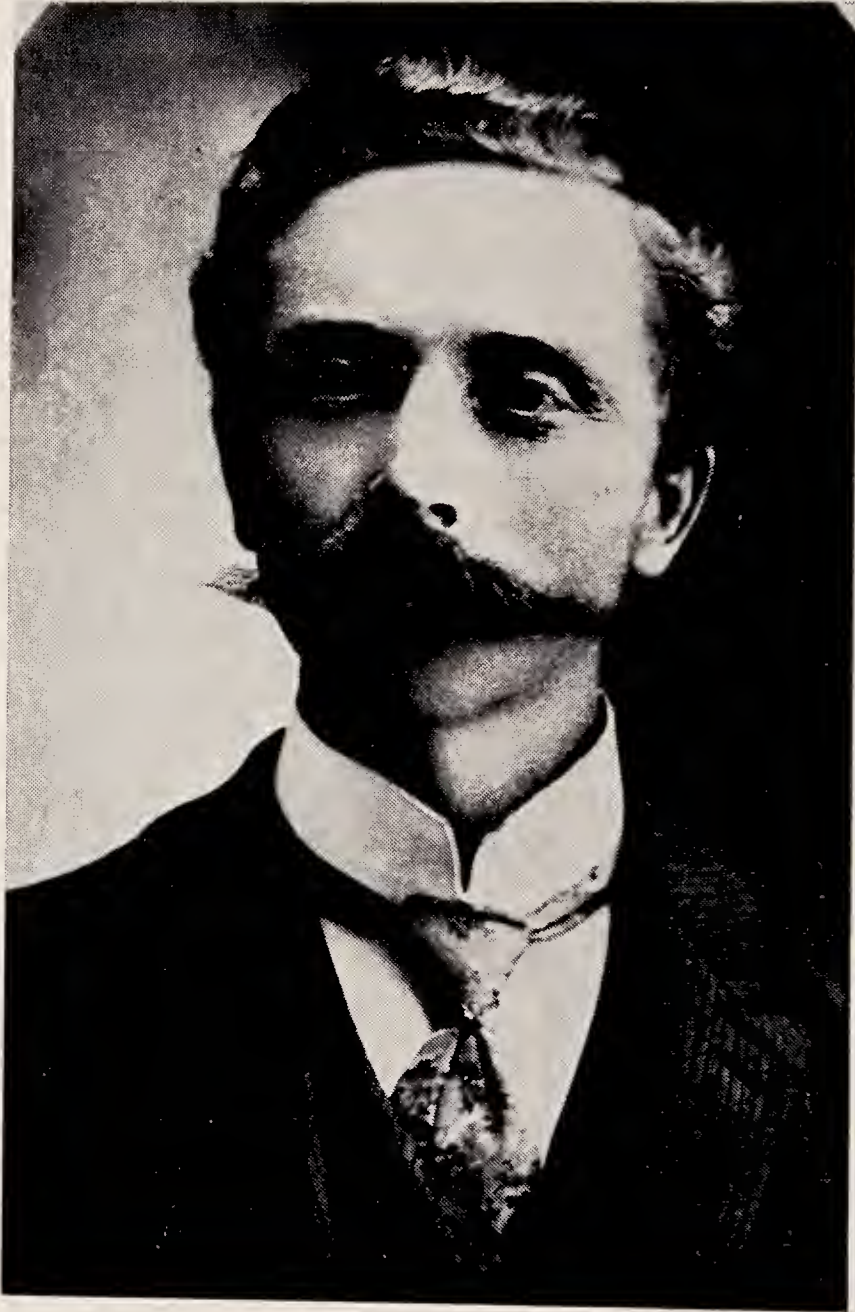

Founded in 1811 by John Jacob Astor's fur trading expedition, Astoria was only a small village settlement of the Hudson Bay Fur Company with little growth for many years. Farming began on a small scale in 1842 when the first cattle were brought into Clatsop county. Several small water driven saw mills with a crew of two to three men were making their appearance. By 1866 John Adair laid out his farm in city lots in Upper Town as it was known. Not until the late seventies did a through road connect Upper Town to downtown Astoria.

The records show the first Norwegian arrived here from California in about 1850. His name was Hans Andersen. He took an Indian woman for his wife, and according to his grand daughter, settled first in Olney and then in 1866 moved to upper Nehalem Valley to become the first white settler there.

By 1870 the railroad over the mountains from San Francisco was completed and the Norwegian immigrants were coming in numbers. A missionary minister, Emil Christensen, tried first attempt in 1873 to organize a church group failed, but in 1884 he succeeded and three years later the first Norwegian church was built on the corner of 29th and Grand. Since there was no improved street at that time the material for the church was carried up from Franklin. This church acted as a great consolidator of the Norwegian settlers in the Astoria area.

As one of the greatest sources of salmon in the world, the Columbia River began to make its contribution to the economy of the Community. In the early eighties a number of canneries came into operation along with the steam driven sawmills. Fishing was done by teams of horses drawing beach seines, along with gillnetting from sailboats and traps set from pilings along the river. The canneries found it necessary to limit fish deliveries up till 1911 when the large runs of salmon came in the late summer.

While many Norwegians earned their livelihood in the rapidly growing fishing industry, some of them looked to the land for a living. In 1887 ten of them, mostly from Fitcher, cleared land in Olney where they set up homesteads. The perseverance and determination of these homesteaders was of awesome proportions when one considers the herculean task of clearing trees by the old methods of slashing and burning. One tree could take many days or weeks to remove. In the Knappa area several Norwegian families settled. Anton Pederson cleared a farm large enough to feed more than 20 dairy cows in the early part of the 20th century. Peter J. Johnson, founder of the Johnson Dairy, cleared a large farm on Tucker Creek.

In 1887 the Scandinavian Benevolent Society made up mostly of Norwegian members was organized. Of the Scandinavian population in the Astoria area the Norwegians were in the great majority. The 1910 census showed 41 children born of Norwegian parents, 12 Swedish, and five Danish.

The immigrants from Norway were the "Bonde Son", sons of farmers with a grade school education, very few with high school or college. Lars Bergsvik from Masfjorden, Hordaland was the Engineer on Fort Columbia when it was built and the Astoria water works to Svensen built in the nineties.

Through the efforts of E. C. Olsen who signed up prospective members, Hans Bugge, Bellingham attorney, and W. B. Olson of Seattle who was Secretary of District 2, Nidaros Lodge No. 16 was started April 18, 1910. At this first meeting 30 new members were initiated and six days later 19 more joined the lodge. Oscar Thompson was elected the first president and Harold Bjorg served as secretary.

A committee of six was formed in August 12 of the same year to organize a Norwegian women's lodge. Serving on this committee was Ole Grotting, Oscar Thompson, L. A. L. Nandrup, E. C. Olsen, Martin Landro, and Andrew Bue. This daughter lodge has been proud of its many outstanding members.

In the Centennial Celebration of 1911 the Nidaros Lodge took part in the Historical parade with a model of Viking ship equipped with a crew of five. Crew members were Ben Lee, Konrad Bekkedal, Christ Lyster, Andrew Lyster and Bernhard Lien, the latter two still living.

In 1955 we again took part in the Sesquicentennial parade with five girls in Norwegian National costume, Harold

Ole Grotting, President — 1912

Husby in National costume, and six men in Viking costume. Because of the fishing season we were short of manpower and found it necessary to utilize a young Irishman to carry our banner. Nevertheless, the lodge received a trophy for its presentation.

Socially, the lodge was a success from the beginning, separately and together with the daughter lodge. Among the outstanding speakers from Norway who has appeared at our lodge are Thomas Angell, Peter Swenson, and Roald Amundsen, the famous Norwegian explorer who spoke here before and following his South Pole expedition. Ludvik Saxe, editor of Normanns-Forbundet magazine spoke before the lodge in 1913. O. B. Grimley in 1936 lectured on Norway. J. C. Hambro, President of the Norewegian Storting addressed us in 1938 and again in 1940 when he presented "I Saw It Happen in Norway." In 1942 Else Margrete Roed, an escapee from Norway told of the war and underground activities in Norway. She was an editor of a women's magazine.

Thanks to the quick action of Trygve Sather and Peter Gagnet who were in the transfer business in December 1922 when the main business district of Astoria burned to the ground, the lodge records were saved.

In 1934 when Astoria was looking for a name for the highway leading into Astoria from the east the lodge sponsored a drive to name it the Leif Erikson. A mass meeting was held at the Odd Fellow Hall to which the press was invited. Rev. M. A. Christensen was the main speaker and Hans Lovvold acted as chairman for the committee. The name was approved by the City Council.

In the same year a committee of three was named to locate a suitable location for recreation purpose. Named on this committee were A. B. Thorsnes, Trygve Sather, and Hans Bue. October 24, it was recommended that 10 acres at Gearhart be purchased for $700.00, and with a vote of 18 to 12 the motion was carried. The land was purchased at an auction sale February 19, 1935 for $503 from the county.

During the last nine years the lodge has paid out $9,932 in sick benefits, $1,090.00 in funeral benefits, and $5,995.86 per capita tax. The lodge has also helped orphan children and the records show aid given for funeral expenses of non members.

Sons of Norway contributed greatly in War Bond Drives during World War II and took an active part in the Norwegian Relief by contributing over $9,000.00 in cash plus clothing to aid victims of the occupotion and war.

By the end of World War II many members had moved and dropped out of the lodge or transferred to other chapters. One such mon was L. O. Belland, an outstanding member who served in the Oregon Legisloture where he introduced a bill asking for $25,000 for the Astoria Centenniol in 1911. During the debate he pointed to the flog on the wall and said, "Gentlemen, if it had not been for those eorly settlers the Americon flag would not be here today." The bill passed. Because of the great love for the old soiling vessel, the St. Nicholas, and the Columbia River he willed his ashes to be scottered from the stern of the St. Nicholas to the river by A. W. Norblad.

In closing, I wish to soy os on immigront myself, thot this is the greotest country in the world, ond this western climote is the finest in the U.S.A.

There were many hardships for the immigrant, not the least was to be cut off from his family. Many sorrowing mothers were left on a far shore ofter soying goodbye to a son or doughter for the last time. Some monaged to return to see their families, but mony did not.

The time is not far distant when the immigrant will be only o page in the history books, but the influence of the high Nordic culture which they b'rought with them to this country will live on and continue to add richness to the growing culture of our adopted country.

In compiling this record of aur members it has been very difficult becouse our first Raster and book of registry could not be found and some of our minutes ore also missing.

I feel very groteful to Mrs. Ouida Pedersen, assistant secretory, for help in daing mast af the typing.

The intention with this Baoklet is to give descendant af the immigront a family book, telling them the name af the county where their farefathers came from ond in most cases have lived on the same farm for centuries.

SONS OF NORWAY

By E. B. HAUKE

All people possessing any of that pride of race, without which no man is worth while, realize that they have a racial inheritance. The struggle for liberty and of efforts to make life richer and more beautiful have given them a background of deep significance, and the moral stamina enabling them to make their way in new surroundings, provided they live up to the best traditions of their race. Hence, it is but natural that, when settling in foreign lands, they do something to conserve their inheritance, not so much for personal or racial benefits as in order to give something of value to their new homelands.

The history of our northern race shows that in the distant past, as well as in more recent times, they have made their telling contributions to the new civilization to the same extent as that in which they have cherished the value of their inheritance. In the building of this western continent no immigrant has come empty handed, be that in moral values or in a determination to contribute his share in the new surroundings.

Imbued with a desire in a small measure to make such Norwegian racial contribution, eighteen young men on January 16, 1895, met on the north side of Minneapolis and organized a society which they called "Sons of Norway". It was patterned after the great American Fraternal Society system of operation, with simplified rituals, ceremonies, a password to enter the lodge room, and initiation of new members, much the same as at the present time. They had not the slightest intention of forming a nationwide organization. Their aim was to fill an immediate want and to confine their activities to their own locality. The country was in a serious depression, and no help was available except from friends and neighbors. Material help to its members was one of the main objectives of this new organization.

So well did the young society do its job that it soon attracted the attention of a great many Americans of Norwegian extraction all over the United States and even in Canada. In 1900 two more lodges were formed in Minneapolis, and the same year a supreme lodge was instituted. In 1903 a similar society was organized on the Pacific Coast with Leif Erikson No. 1 in Seattle, and soon the movement spread over the entire west coast. In 1910 a system of districts were formed, with the west designated as District No. 2. Sons of Norway then had a membership of around 8,000. As of January 1, 1960, the entire membership of Sons of Norway, men, women and children, is estimated at close to 40,000.

Astoria, Oregon, has had an unusual number of immigrants from Norway in proportion to its size. The flow of new people was at its height from 1890 to 1910. Salmon fisheries and lumber mills attracted the attention of thousands of sturdy men from the north of Europe. Here they found employment, and here they built their homes and raised their families. Unfamiliar with the language and the new way of life, it was natural that they first sought the companionship of their fellow countrymen, whose interests were so much like their own. Norwegians are by nature slow, and careful in forming close contact with strangers in a strange land. But they possessed so much of their racial inheritance that could not be kept dormant for long. They soon came together in various groups for purposes of exercising the intellectual and inherent knowledge of arts, literature, sports and general fellowship they had brought with them from Norway.

Thus we find that before the turn of the century "Idun Literary Society" came into being, followed closely by the "Larken Singing Society". Both of these have made outstanding contributions to the community life of Astoria. The ground was thus well prepared when the Sons of Norway movement reached Astoria. On April 18, 1910, Nidaros No. 16 was organized at Idun Hall with a large charter membership. The late Oscar Thompson, known best for his poetical accomplishment, became its first president. Many others of the founders followed in his footsteps, but space will not allow us to mention them here. The charter members were mainly from Trondelag, same as the founding fathers of 1895, and Nidaros was the capital of Norway during and for some time after the Viking period, having been founded by King Olav Trygvoson in the year 995. Nidaros lodge has observed the program of all Sons of Norway lodges in giving aid and assistance to its members, especially in sickness and distress, of entertainment, recreation and genuine good fellowship. In this it has an enviable record both in Astoria and elsewhere.

Nidaros lodge has been host to the conventions of District Lodge No. 2 on three occasions. Meetings were held at the Redmen's Hall in 1916, at the I. O. O. F. Hall in 1928, and at the U. S. O. pavilion in 1950. The lodge is favorably known throughout the district as a grand host, reflecting the same genuine hospitality shown by Stjernen Lodge No. 7, Daughters of Norway, and the former Larken Singing Society. The lodge works in close cooperation with Daughters of Norway, and few events of any consequence are held without this combination of efforts. Financially it stands high. Through careful handling of its income, expenditures, and investments, it has maintained a substantial treasury. However, many of its members are now well advanced in age and will need the benefits guaranteed them by the lodge by-laws.

Perhaps one of the most outstanding accomplishments during the past 50 years was the purchase of ten acres of seashore land near Seaside, and the erection of one of the finest lodge halls in the order. In fact, to one who has seen summer homes in every nook and corner of Sons of Norway, this place of recreation and enjoyment has no equal in its class in the entire organization. May it always be used for the pleasure and entertainment of all members and friends of Nidaros Lodge.

With a membership of over 300 the lodge stands high in the records of the order, considering the size of the city and the healthy and friendly competition with the local lodge of Daughters of Norway.

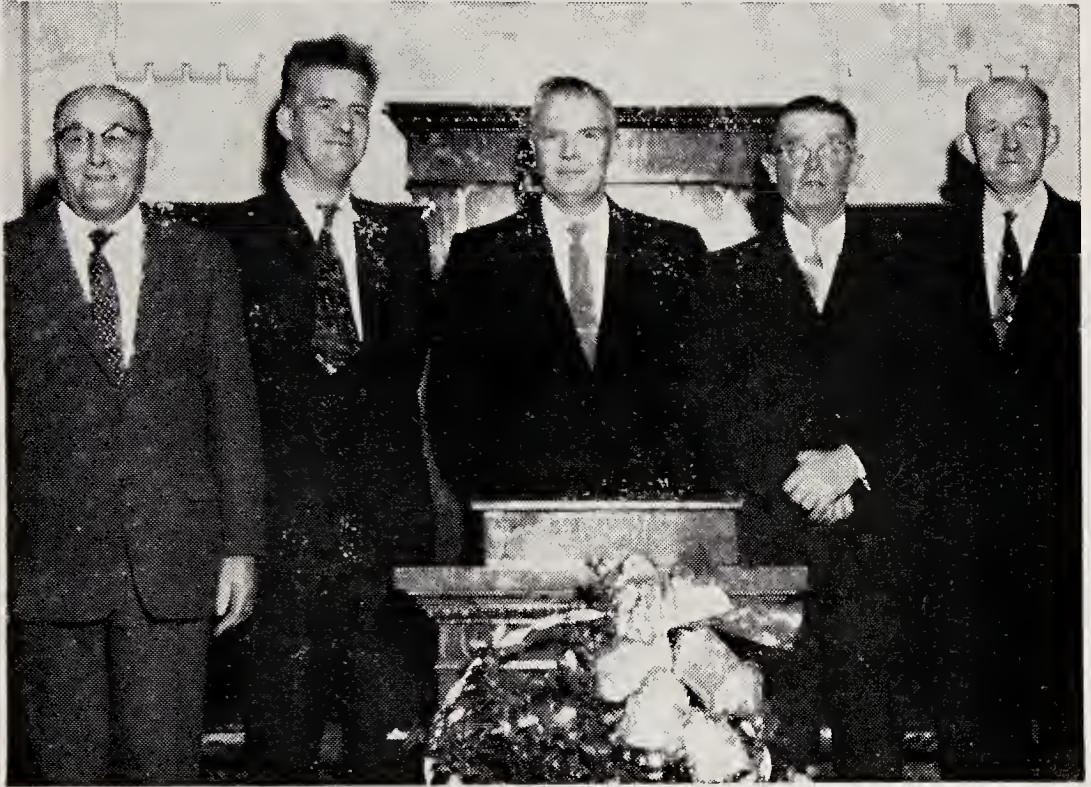

At the half century mark of the founding of Nidaros No. 16 we are all very happy over its accomplishments, its fraternal history, and the solid financial condition in which we find it. The founders and others of the first generation are slowly passing away, but younger men and women are taking their places. This was quite evident at the installation of officers for 1960, and the observance of the 65th anniversary of the founding of Sons of Norway in the United States and Canada, January 16, 1960.

In entering upon the second half century of our lodge we feel confident that under the able leadership of second generation President Hiram Johnson, and others in responsible positions, Nidaros No. 16 will continue a strong link in our fraternal chain in this country. It is an American-Canadian organization to which men and women of Norwegian extraction or affiliation may well find it worth while to belong.
